SPEAKERS

Graham Keeley – The Times

Spain Correspondent of The Times. Since 2008, he has covered a wide variety of subjects from the economic crisis, the defeat of ETA, the rise of separatism in Catalonia and a series of scandals involving the government, the royal family and business leaders. Now the story seems to be Spain's economic revival.

Fiona Govan – The Local

Formerly correspondent for The Daily Telegraph, Fiona Govan has covered events in Spain for a British audience since arriving in Madrid eight years ago. She has written on themes ranging from politics, society and culture to Spain's managing of the economic crisis and issues affecting the huge number of British expats residing in Spain. In February 2015 she was appointed Spain Editor of The Local, the largest English language news network in Europe, with four million readers each month.

Stephen Burgen – The Guardian

The writer, journalist and translator, Stephen Burgen has lived in Barcelona since 2001 when he came here as the Spain correspondent of The Times. He was the founding editor of the Catalan daily Catalonia Today and also of the monthly Inside Spain. He now writes Spanish news and business stories for The Guardian and stories related to Catalan independence for The Scotsman, as well as being a freelance contributor and translator for the communications department of IESE Business School.

Walter Oppenheimer - El País

Walter Oppenheimer has been working for the Spanish leading paper El País since 1982 until now. He has been the European correspondent based in Brussels from 1995 to 2001 and then the UK and Ireland correspondent based in London until October 2014, when he came back to work in his home town, Barcelona.
